History of Thailand Sports School Games

Sports school in Thailand was arisen from the government's approval in principle for nationwide sports development. The first sports school in Thailand, namely “Suphan Buri Sports School, was founded on 7 August 1991. At present, there are 13 sports schools under Thailand National Sports University, Ministry of Tourism and Sports, to serve the national sports excellence and development of the quality of people in the country that results in the quality of youths physically, mentally, emotionally and socially. It is hoped that the sports school will be a source of producing and sending athletes to participate in the international level, especially Olympic Games, Asian Games and SEA Games.

Thailand Sports School Games was created as a part of sport development. The Department of Physical Education (The Office of Sport and Recreation Sports Development at present) approved to set the first sports school competition, Thailand Sports School Games, in Udon Thani Province in 1995 by organizing the competition together with the College of Physical Education Games. By the principle of organizing the competition the sport types in the competition comply with the sports opened for teaching and learning in the sports school. The competition brings about the opportunity to promote and enhance the athletic ability to reach the maximum potential along with the physical, emotional, social and intellectual development.

In order to prepare the athlete for best performance and competency development in the national and international sports events, and use the sport school competition as a source of study, experiment, and research for sports development complying with the government policies. Thailand Sports School Games have been conducted continuously and the 24th edition is held in Lampang Province, Thailand. Lampang Sports School is honored by Lampang Province and the Thailand National Sports University, Ministry of Tourism and Sports to host the 24th Thailand Sports School Games “NAKHON LAMPANG GAMES” during 22 - 31 July 2023.
